

THE TAKEOVER PANEL

NOTE TO ADVISERS IN RELATION TO RE-REGISTERING A PUBLIC COMPANY AS A PRIVATE COMPANY

In order for a public company to re-register as a private company, it is necessary, as a matter of company law, for the company to pass a resolution to that effect. If the re-registration becomes effective, the Takeover Code (the “Code”) will no longer apply to the company, provided it does not fall within one of the categories described in sections 3(a)(ii)(A) to (D) of the Introduction to the Code.

As described in section 3(e) of the Introduction to the Code, the Panel Executive (the “Executive”) expects shareholders, before voting on the re-registration, to be given an adequate explanation of the Code and the Code protections that they will be giving up if the re-registration becomes effective. To assist advisers, the Executive has prepared the attached pro forma drafting for inclusion in the re-registration circular or explanatory memorandum to be sent to shareholders before the relevant resolution is passed.

Advisers should note that the Code will continue to apply until the Registrar of Companies has issued a re-registration certificate to the company in accordance with the Companies Act 2006.

Similar considerations may arise where a company that is subject to the Code is seeking to cancel the admission of its securities to trading on a UK regulated market or a UK multilateral trading facility or on any stock exchange in the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man. In such cases (including where the Code is expected to continue to apply to the company following the de-listing), the advisers to the company should contact the Executive to inform it of the proposal and discuss the appropriate information to be given to shareholders.

Recommended procedure to be followed for a re-registration

1. The advisers to the company to which the Code applies should contact the Executive to inform it of the proposed re-registration.
2. The advisers to the company should confirm with the Executive that the company does not fall within one of the categories described in sections 3(a)(ii)(A) to (D) of the Introduction to the Code. If the company does fall within one of those categories, the Code will continue to apply, notwithstanding the re-registration. In such cases, the advisers to the company should discuss with the Executive the appropriate information to be given to shareholders.
3. Assuming that the confirmation referred to in paragraph 2 above has been given to the Executive, the advisers to the Code company should amend the pro forma drafting, as appropriate (i.e. to take account of the particular facts of any related transaction) and send it to the Executive for approval.
4. Once the circular or explanatory memorandum has been satisfactorily completed and approved by the Executive, it should be sent to shareholders in good time to ensure that they have an adequate opportunity to consider the Code implications of passing the resolution before it is passed. Holders of convertible securities, options or subscription rights in the company (if any) should be sent a copy of the circular or explanatory memorandum at the same time.
5. Once the re-registration process has been completed, as evidenced by the issue of the re-registration certificate by the Registrar of Companies, the Code will cease to apply. Advisers should, as a matter of good practice, confirm to the Executive when the re-registration procedure has been completed and provide the Executive with a copy of the re-registration certificate.

Suggested drafting to be included in a circular or explanatory memorandum to be sent to shareholders before a public company is re-registered as a private company

The Takeover Code (the “Code”) applies to all offers for companies which have their registered office in the UK, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man if any of their equity share capital or other transferable securities carrying voting rights are admitted to trading on a UK regulated market or a UK multilateral trading facility or on any stock exchange in the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man.

The Code also applies to all offers for companies (both public and private) which have their registered offices in the UK, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man which are considered by the Takeover Panel (the “Panel”) to have their place of central management and control in the UK, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man, but in relation to private companies only if one of a number of conditions is met, including that any of the company’s equity share capital or other transferable securities carrying voting rights have been admitted to trading on a UK regulated market or a UK multilateral trading facility or on any stock exchange in the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man at any time in the preceding ten years.

None of these conditions apply to the Company. As a result, in the event that the Re-registration is approved by Shareholders at the General Meeting and becomes effective, the Code will then cease to apply to the Company and Shareholders will no longer be afforded the protections provided by the Code, including the requirement for a mandatory cash offer to be made if either:

- (a) a person acquires an interest in shares which, when taken together with the shares in which persons acting in concert with it are interested, increases the percentage of shares carrying voting rights in which it is interested to 30% or more; or
- (b) a person, together with persons acting in concert with it, is interested in shares which in the aggregate carry not less than 30% of the voting rights of a company but does not hold shares carrying more than 50% of such voting rights and such person, or any person acting in concert with it, acquires an interest in any other shares which increases the percentage of shares carrying voting rights in which it is interested.

Brief details of the Panel, and of the protections afforded by the Code (which will cease to apply following the Re-registration), are set out in section [] of this document.

Before giving your consent to the Re-registration, you may want to take independent professional advice from an appropriate independent financial adviser.

The Code

The Code is issued and administered by the Panel. The Code currently applies to the Company and, accordingly, its shareholders are entitled to the protections afforded by the Code.

The Code and the Panel operate principally to ensure that shareholders are treated fairly and are not denied an opportunity to decide on the merits of a takeover, and that shareholders of the same class are afforded equivalent treatment by an offeror. The Code also provides an orderly framework within which takeovers are conducted. In addition, it is designed to promote, in conjunction with other regulatory regimes, the integrity of the financial markets.

The General Principles and Rules of the Code

The Code is based upon a number of General Principles which are essentially statements of standards of commercial behaviour. The General Principles apply to takeovers and all other matters with which the Code is concerned. They are applied by the Panel in accordance with their spirit to achieve their underlying purpose.

In addition to the General Principles, the Code contains a series of Rules. Some of the Rules provide more detail on how the General Principles will be applied by the Panel and others govern specific aspects of takeover procedure. Like the General Principles, the Rules are to be interpreted to achieve their underlying purpose. Therefore, their spirit must be observed as well as their letter. The Panel may derogate or grant a waiver to a person from the application of a Rule in certain circumstances.

Giving up the protection of the Code

A summary of key points regarding the application of the Code to takeovers generally is set out in Appendix A. You are encouraged to read this information carefully as it outlines certain important protections which you will be giving up if you agree to the Re-registration.

Your attention is drawn in particular to [key points in relation to the actual transaction proposed, including any aspects which would otherwise not comply with the Code]. [In preparing this section, advisers should consider GP1 and Rules 6, 9, 11, 14, 15, 16, 21 and 31. In particular, if, as a result of a proposed transaction, a mandatory offer obligation would arise under Rule 9 but for the re-registration, prominent reference must be made here to this fact and to the price at which the obligation would otherwise arise.] Further details are set out in Appendix B.

Appendix A

The following is a summary of key provisions of the Code which apply to transactions to which the Code applies. You should note that, by agreeing to the re-registration of the Company as a private company, you will be giving up the protections afforded by the Code.

Equality of treatment

General Principle 1 of the Code states that all holders of the securities of an offeree company of the same class must be afforded equivalent treatment. Furthermore, Rule 16.1 requires that, except with the consent of the Panel, special arrangements may not be made with certain shareholders in the Company if there are favourable conditions attached which are not being extended to all shareholders. [Details of any potential breaches of General Principle 1 or Rule 16.1 should be included in the main part of the circular or explanatory memorandum.]

Information to shareholders

General Principle 2 requires that the holders of the securities of an offeree company must have sufficient time and information to enable them to reach a properly informed decision on the takeover bid. Consequently, a document setting out full details of an offer must be sent to the offeree company's shareholders.

The opinion of the offeree board and independent advice

The board of the offeree company is required by Rule 3.1 of the Code to obtain competent independent advice as to whether the financial terms of an offer are fair and reasonable and the substance of such advice must be made known to shareholders. Rule 25.2 requires the board of the offeree company to send to shareholders and persons with information rights its opinion on the offer and its reasons for forming that opinion. That opinion must include the board's views on: (i) the effects of implementation of the offer on all the company's interests, including, specifically, employment; and (ii) the offeror's strategic plans for the offeree company and their likely repercussions on employment and the locations of the offeree company's places of business.

The document sent to shareholders must also deal with other matters such as interests and recent dealings in the securities of the offeror and the offeree company by relevant parties and whether the directors of the offeree company intend to accept or reject the offer in respect of their own beneficial shareholdings.

Rule 20.1 states that, except in certain circumstances, information and opinions relating to an offer or a party to an offer must be made equally available to all offeree company shareholders and persons with information rights as nearly as possible at the same time and in the same manner.

[The following section should be included if the Company has more than one class of equity share capital.]

More than one class of equity share capital

Rule 14 provides that where a company has more than one class of equity share capital, a comparable offer must be made for each class whether such capital carries voting rights or not. [Note: if as a result of a proposed transaction, a Rule 14 obligation would arise but for the re-registration, prominent reference must be made to this fact and to the price at which the obligation would otherwise arise.]

[The following section should be included if the Company has convertible securities in issue or options or subscription rights outstanding.]

Optionholders and holders of convertible securities or subscription rights

Rule 15 provides that when an offer is made and the offeree company has convertible securities outstanding, the offeror must make an appropriate offer or proposal to the holders of those securities to ensure their interests are safeguarded. Rule 15 also applies in relation to holders of options and other subscription rights. [It may be appropriate to summarise the effect of the transaction on holders of convertible securities, options and subscription rights.]

[Any major departures from the Code should be explained in the body of the circular or explanatory memorandum.]

IF THERE IS A TRANSACTION IN CONTEMPLATION EITHER IN CONNECTION WITH OR FOLLOWING THE RE-REGISTRATION

Appendix B

Details of the transaction

Details of the proposed transaction should be included here in order to provide sufficient information to shareholders for them to make an informed decision on the proposed re-registration.

The following is a guide to what might be expected:

- (a) where the Code company is to be acquired by another party:
- the aggregate consideration proposed and what form it will take (e.g. cash/loan notes/shares in the offeror);
 - the consideration per share;
 - if it is proposed that any element of the consideration will be deferred, the basis on which this is proposed (including full details of any formula to determine the amount payable);
 - if it is proposed that any element of the consideration will be withheld (e.g. to cover potential warranty claims), the basis on which this is proposed;
 - if it is proposed that any element of the consideration will differ between shareholders, the basis on which this is proposed;
 - if the acquisition is to be made by way of a sale and purchase agreement, an outline of its principal terms other than those above. In particular, this should include the main warranties and indemnities to be sought from the shareholders, whether there is any cap on the potential liability under such warranties and indemnities (and the quantum of that cap), and whether those warranties or indemnities differ between shareholders;
 - if the acquisition is to be made by way of an offer, an outline of its terms other than those above, including the conditions attaching to the offer and an indication of the likely timetable; and
 - an outline explanation of any special arrangements between the acquirer and any shareholders other than the proposed consideration as set out above (c.f. Rule 16.1). This might include details of service contracts, option schemes or other incentivisation arrangements for retained management (c.f. Rule 16.2).
- (b) where the transaction with regard to the Code company would otherwise generally fall within the scope of the Code (e.g. an acquisition of shares or interests in shares which would otherwise require a mandatory offer to be made under Rule 9, or an issue of new shares which would otherwise require a Rule 9 waiver under Appendix 1 of the Code):
- full details of transaction;
 - an outline of the intentions of the new controller and background information on that person;
 - the resultant percentage interests in shares of any person who would otherwise breach a Code threshold (e.g. by acquiring interests in shares carrying 30% or more of the voting rights of the company) and the protections that the Code would have provided in those circumstances absent the re-registration;

- the price at which any shares or interests in shares are being transferred (and the Code implications which would arise absent the re-registration);
- the ability of the new controller to pass or block ordinary or special resolutions of the company (if applicable); and
- further details as appropriate.

Advisers should note that the above suggestions are not comprehensive – shareholders should be given sufficient information in order for them to make an informed decision as to whether to give up the protections afforded by the Code by agreeing to re-register the Company as a private company. In order to do this, it is essential that they fully understand the practical and commercial implications of giving up the protections afforded by the Code. The fact that certain shareholders may be intimately involved in the negotiation of a transaction is not a substitute for full disclosure in the circular or explanatory memorandum.
